INVITATION TO STUDENTS FOR THE ONLINE INCLUDE PROGRAM

INCLUDE is an online training program based on the CBR guidelines. It is a self learning program. It is for those who work in Community Based Rehabilitation (CBR). This online platform is also to augment existing training programs that are already being offered. Policy makers, those promoting inclusion and other interested entities can benefit from INCLUDE. It is developed and produced by the World Health Organization (WHO).

Like the guidelines, INCLUDE has 8 modules. It provides tools to assist learners to reflect on their own experience. Case studies portray children and adults with different disabilities living in the community accessing education, livelihood and other key areas in different settings including in resource-scarce locations - thus opening the learner to new possibilities.

INCLUDE invites the learner to develop management action plans to implement the five components and corresponding elements of the CBR matrix. These action plans can be stored and built on over time, and shared with others in the CBR community.

What INCLUDE is NOT

- A top-down instructional replacement for local level learning groups.
- A learning programme to be used by individual practitioners in isolation.

INCLUDE is being hosted by CBR Global Network and Vidya Sagar.
